REED RULES!

That His Own Will Controls the House.

DECLARES A QUORUM PRESENT

And Is Blind to the Facts of the Case.

JUDGE CRISP'S GALLANT FIGHT

The Great Georgian Has Come to the Front.

Washington, January 29.—[Special.]—Reed is the autocrat. Crisp, the great demo-

For utter wildness, the scene in the house today has never been equaled! Pandemonium reigned supreme!

Democratic members went wild with excitement and anger, and the dictatorial speaker was denounced in the strongest terms.
But Tom Reed deserved every word of it!

He formally set up his dictatorship today, and the house of representatives is yet bordering on a state of anarchy. Not even during the exciting discussions on the force bill in the exciting discussions on the force bill in 1873, was there a scene of such intense excite-ment, or one more wildly tumultuous, than when the burly giant, Tom Reed, the chozen czar of a republican caucus, broke down a constitutional protection to the minority which has remained unshaken during all the political storms that have swept through the people's branch of congress since the inception of government, and which no speaker, even during the heated parliamentary struggles over the extension of slavery, the fiercest strife of the civil war, or the more exciting struggles of the reconstruction period, has dared to lay violent hands upon.

A DESPERATE PARTY EXPEDIENT. As a desperate party expedient, Speaker Reed decided against the specific words of the constitution, against his own former decision, and against the decisions of every court in the land that has had occasion to pass upon the question that less than a majority could pass a motion. As ex-Speaker Carlisle put it, if Reed is right, then one man has as much right to pass a bill or make the journal as 166-a awful majo rity.

Just after the house met, a motion was made to take up the Smith-Jackson contested election case. Judge Crisp raised the question of consideration, and an aye and no vote was Judge Crisp, refused to vote. However, Messrs. Cowles, Buckalew and Covert voted by mistake. All three asked to withdraw their votes before the vote was announced, but Then Mr. Covert, of New York, shrewdly asked to be allowed to change his vote. The speaker consented, and when the clerk called his name he simply said: "I will vote later.

Thus he euchred the speaker, and his vote was not counted.

THE VILLAIN IN THE CHAIR.

During the roll call Mr. Reed had been watching the democratic members and mark-ing down the names of those he saw present who refused to vote.

When he announced the vote, it was 161

ayes and 2 noes. "No quorum" was called, when Mr. Reed proceded to announce the names of members he saw present who had refused to vote, and directed the clerk to record them in the journal as present.

A loud shout of approval went up from the republican Iside, and at the same instant every democrat was on his feet protesting. Just imagine the scene! A great hall filled with representatives; galleries all around, packed and jammed with people; every mem-ber on the floor upon his feet; the mass of men on one side jeering and applauding; an equal number on the other angered and en-raged, shaking their fists at the presiding officer, denouncing his dictatorial decisions, and yelling in derision: "Czar, czar, dictator, dictator revolution

"Silver-haired" Breckinridge, of Kentucky, rushed to the front, and in a voice of thunder "I denounce the speaker in resorting to

Then every democrat rose to his feet. Shout after shout, yell after yell, went up from every man until the stained-glass ceiling vibrated as though it would break.

From the republican side came back the shout: "Listen to the rebel yell!"

THE WILD CONFUSION.

But nothing would stop it. Members jumped up on their seats, threw papers and books in the air, and shook their fists at each other until it seemed there would be a veritable riot Tom Reed's face reddened, but he knew there was no use in trying to maintain order, and remained quietly in his seat. As matters quieted somewhat, Mr. Hatch

"The speaker, by announcing my name, ha broken an honorable pair I had with a gentle-man on the other side. I have not voted all the week, and I denounce him." Then another shout went up. Mr. O'Farrell, of Virginia, cried out, pointing his finger at Reed: "It is not for you, sir, to say whether I shall vote or not. I am only responsible to my constituents for my vote."

Mr. Outhwaite, of Ohio, thundered out: "Sir, I was not present when my name was called. You utter an untruth when you say I

Then Mr. Bland and a dozen others de nounced the speaker in the most vigorous terms, amid the plaudits of the democrats and the jeers of the republicans. Mr. Cowles, of North Carolina, became so excited that he cried out:

'We'll fight for it, and throw that man out

With this he started towards the speaker. drawing up his coat sleeves as he walked. However, he was headed off by less excited democrats, and persuaded to desist from

After, perhaps, twenty minutes of such wild scenes, the members quieted down from mere exhaustion, and then the chair proceeded to say that the minority had the right to appeal from the decision of the chair. He said he had seen the members present, and had directed that the record show a quorum present as directed by the constitution.

Then he cited a question of the kind that had been raised in the New York senate when decided against it, and the minority had the right to appeal. He then cited other cases in state legislatures, but took Governor-Hill's de-cision as his text, as it were. He concluded by saying: "The chair rules a querum present."

THE GALLANT GEORGIAN.

Judge Crisp quickly appealed, when Mr. Payson, of Illinois, moved to lay it on the Judge Crisp demanded to be heard, but Mr. Reed refused, and was about to put the vote. Then Judge Crist became indignant, and, in the most highly dramatic manner, pointed to Reed, and said:

"Sir, this is unjust, unfair and unmanly or your part. I appeal to you, sir, as a man, to allow the minority to be heard."

With this the democrats again arose and with one voice cried out: "We demand

At this instant, big Honest Ben Butter worth, an Ohio republican, rushed out into the main aisle and protested. "The democrats have a right to be heard," he cried. "I hope the gentleman from Illinois will withdraw his motion to lay it on

Reed wilted when the brainlest man in his own party refused to sustain his arbitrary and dishonest methods, and sullenly announced that the gentleman from Georgia might proceed. Then Judge Crisp made the greatest and most thorough speech of his life and one of the greatest speeches of the kind ever made in congress. He covered himself with glory, and not only the whole state of Georgia, but the entire south, should feel proud of this man who, by brains, nerve and ability has made himself the great democratic leader of the I ouse of representatives. Not even Sam Randall in his palmiest days could have fought with more force and vigor than he, nor has a great party ever applauded a leader more than the democrats did Judge Crisp today.

He first argued against Reed's decision on constitutional grounds. Then he took up a similar case, which came up once before in the house, and read from the speech of Garfield and Blaine, both of whom denounced it as unconstitutional and unjust. But the telling part of his speech came out when he quoted from Speaker Tom Reed him-self, in a speech made during the second session of the forty-sixth congress, in opposition to a similar ruling when Reed had said: constitutional idea of a quorum is not the presence of a majority of all the members of the house, but a majority of the men present and participating in the business." Then Reed became white in the face; the blood seemed to have left his body, and he played nervously with the gavel. Judge Crisp had him, and he seemed to feel that he had been floored, disgraced, killed, politically. But that was not all. Judge Crisp had not done with him. "Now, Mr. Speaker," he said; "I shall quote from you further. You have expressed our sentiments exactly. Not today, but in the same speech I have just quoted from. The question could not be better expressed than in these words of yours: "It is not the visible presence of a quorum of members, but their judgment and their votes, that the constitution calls for. Now, Mr. Speaker," continued Judge Crisp, "I appeal from Phillip drunk to applauded and laughed derisively.

Reed mustered up his courage to say: "The house will have the kindness to be in order,' and this was followed by greater laughter Then speaking of Tucker's amendment, which Reed had referred to, Judge Crisp said:

Reed turned even whiter and the democrats

Phillip sober."

"So forciful were the arguments of Blaine, Garfield and yourself, Mr. Speaker, that Mr. Tucker withdrew his amendment and never asked for a vote. I have not read all of your remarks, Mr. Speaker," said Judge Crisp, "but I think enough to show a conclusive reply to your argument of today. Could it be more tersely put," he said. "What reason has the distinguished speaker, in deciding the question today, given for his change of conviction. He has presented a decision of a presiding officer in New York. I say, without reference to that particular presiding officer, with Mr. Blaine, that in all legislative bodies, wherever that custom prevailed, it has nore fraud and scandal than has ever obtained in legislative history. When you adopt it, says Mr. Blaine, you stand on the brink of a

Mr. Springer jumped to his feet, and answered that all the republican members, in-cluding Mr. Lansing, now on this floor, dedonnced the action of Governor Hill as unconstitutional and revolutionary, and the demoerats applauded again.

Mr. Lansing replied that he was entirely converted to Governor Hill's argument.
"But not until now," said Mr. Springer, and applause arose another time.

Judge Crisp thus went on, but Reed was afraid to hear more, and as a republican inter-rupted him, Reed announced that rupted him, Reed announced that when Crisp yielded, he gave up the

"I will not yield, then. Your parliamentary law is an unknown region to me."

Then the judge continued to discuss Reed's various arbitrary decisions, and completely took the hide off him, so to speak.

At the conclusion of Judge Crisp's speech. the democrats applauded two or three minutes, and crowded around to congratulate him on

Mr. Cannon followed Judge Crisp in a very feeble effort to sustain the speaker, in which he was applauded only once, and that was when, by his wild gesticulation, he struck a passing page boy. CARLISLE ON THE FLOOR Then ex-Speaker Carlisle took the floor, and made a splendid argument against Reed's rul-ing, in which he completely dissected it, showing that, if the speaker has the right to count a quorum, we never could pass a bill. "If the decision is confirmed," he said, "there is no longer any safety for the people of this countrb. The ruling works a complete revolution in the transaction of the business of this

As Mr. Carlisle sat down Mr. McKinley moved to adjourn, showing that he and the reublicans were sick, and felt badly worsted. But the matter comes up tomorrow, and, of course, it is but natural that Reed's decision will be sustained, as the doubting republicans can be gotten into line by the vigorous use of the party lash. However, it is revolutionary in the extreme, and with such a rule members simply become automaton's in the hand of the speaker.

Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, raised the question of consideration. On this vote, the democrats, with three exceptions—Buckalew, Covert and Cowles—refrained from voting. While the clerk was calling the roll the speaker was carefully noting the names of those democrats who were present and not voting.

Before the announcement of the vote Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, who had inadvertently voted in the affirmative, decided to withdraw his vote, but he was met with a storm of objections from the republican side.

Mr. Rogers endeavored to secure a ruling from the speaker on the question, in order that he might enter an appeal, but the speaker declined to rule.

Mr. Covert, of New York, changed his vote from the negative to the affirmative. Mr. Rogers was then given permission to change his vote, as was also Mr. Cowles, of North Carolina The vote was announced as standing: Yeas Mr. Crisp raised the point of no quorum.

THE TROUBLE BEGINS.

The Speaker—The chair directs the clerk to ecord the following names of members present and refusing to vote.

This statement was the signal for a burst of applause from the republicans and of jeers from the democrats. The clerk then proceeded to read the na of democrats whom the speaker had jotted down as being present and not voting.

Mr. Crisp desired to appeal from the decision of the chair. The peaker replied that in due time, he would allow the gentleman every proper appeal to the house in an orderly fashion, as the chairwould demonstrate to the satisfaction of the house.

The seaker then preceded to make his isfaction of the house.

The speaker then proceeded to make his statement. The clerk, he said, "had announced of members voting 161 yeas; 2 nays. The chair thereupon, having seen the members present and having heard their names called in their presence, had directed a record to be made of the fact. Accordingly that question was now before the house, and the chair proceed to give the statement, accompanied by a posed to give the statement, accompanied by a ruling from which an appeal could be taken if any gentleman was dissatisfied therewith." REED RESUMES HIS STATEMENT.

Mr. Crisp-In advance, I enter an appeal. [Laughter.]

The speaker, continuing, said that for some considerable time a fusion of this nature had been raised in many parliamentary assem-blages and there had been a great deal of doubt, been raised in many parliamentary assemblages and there had been a great deal of doubt, especially in this body, on the subject. The chair well recollected a proposition of this kind made by Mr. Randolph Tucker, of Virginia, an able constitutional lawer, as well as an able member of this house. The matter had been somewhat discussed, and the proposition was made with regard to putting it in the rules. The general opinion, which prevailed at that time, was that it was expedient to do so. Some men had grave doubts whether it was proper to make such an amendment to the rules as would constitute the persons present a part of a quorum. The evils which had resulted from the other course had not been apparent then as now; and no such careful study had been then given to the subject as was given at the present time. That had taken place in 1880. Since then there had been various arguments and various decisions by very eminent gentlemen on the subject, and these decisions had very much cleared up the question and rendered it much more apparent what the true rule was. One of the first places where the question had been raised was in the senate of the state of New York. The present governor of New York had been presiding officer, and upon him had rested a duty similar to that which now rested upon the speaker. He had met that duty in precisely the same manner. The question in New York had arisen on the constitutional necessity of having the efforts of members to constitute a quorum for the The question in New York had arisen on the constitutional necessity of having the efforts of members to constitute a quorum for the passage of a certain bill, and the presiding officer had held that the constitutional provision as to a quorum was entirely satisfied by the presence of the members, even if they did not vote. Accordingly he had directed the recording officer of the assembly, as a part of the record of the transaction, to put down the names of members of the senate who were present and refused to vote in precisely the manner which the present occupant of the chair had adopted. That decision could not be regarded as in any sense decision could not be regarded as in any sense partisan, at least as he solved it. There had also been a decision in the state of Tennessee, also been a decision in the state of Tennessee, where the provision of law required two-thirds of the members to constitute a quorum. In the legislature of 1885 the registration bill had been pending, which was objected to by the republican members of the house. On the third reading the republicans had refused to vote, whereupon the speaker had directed the clerk to count as present those not voting, and had declared the bill as passed on that reading. Those two decisions, the first made in 1883 and the other in 1885, seemed to the present occupant of the chair to cover the ground; but there was an entirely familiar process which every old member would recognize whereby the opinion of the chair is incontestible evidence of recognition at all times of the right to record the members present as constituting a part of a quorum. It at all times of the right to record the members present as constituting a part of a quorum. It had been almost an every-day occurrence at certain stages of the session for votes to be annoused by the chair containing obviously and emphatically no quorum. Yet, if the point was not made, the bill was always declared passed, and that could only be on a very distinct basis, and that was that everybody present silently agreed to the fact that there was a quorum. There was no ground on which; by any possibility, such a bill could be passed constitutionally unless the presence of a quorum was inferred, and it was inferred from the fact that no one had raised the question. All was inferred, and it was inferred from the fact that no one had raised the question. All methods of determining a vote were of equal value. A count by the chair, and a count by tellers, and a count by the yeas and nays were of equal value. The house had the right, on the call of one-fifth of the members, to have a yea and nay vote, and then on that the question was decided, but the decision in each of the other cases was of precisely the same value. It had always been the practice in parliamentary bodies of this character, and especially in the parliament of Great Britain, for the speaker to determine the question of which was or not a quorum present by the count. It was because that was a determination of that was entrusted to the presiding officers in almost all instances, so that when the question was raised whether there was a quorum or not, without a instances, so that when the question was raised whether there was a quorum or not, without a special arrangement for determining it, it would be determined by a count by the presiding officer. Again there was a provision in the constitution which declared that the house might establish rules for compelling the attendance of members. If members could be present, and refuse to exercise their functions, and yet not be counted as a quorum, that provision would seem to be entirely nugatory. The speaker then read at length Governor Hill's decision, when presiding officer of the New York senate, and laughter and applaise by the republicans greeted the reading of the sentences we the action of the minority was denounced as rebellious and revolutionary.

THE SPEAKER'S RULING.

The reading having been completed, the nized Mr. Payson, of Illinois, for a motion to lay the appeal upon the table.

"This motion is not open to discussion and Mr. Crisp protested against Mr. Payson's recognition. For some time there were appearances of a return of the excitement which had occurred earlier in the day. Mr. Crisp exclaimed that it was unfair and unmanly to prevent him from pleading his case to his fellow members. He appealed to the chair on his fairness as a man and speaker to give the democrats an opportunity to reply to the argument which the speaker has seen proper to make.

BUTTERWORTH SAW IT WAS UNFAIR.

BUTTERWORTH SAW IT WAS UNFAIR.

Mr. Butterworth, of Ohio—I hope the gentleman from Illinois will withdraw his motion to lay on the table. This is an important question and the gentlemen or the other side have the right to be heard. [Loud applause on the democratic side.]

CRISP CORNERS REED.

Mr. Crisp then obtained the floor, and made ioned argument against the speaker's ruling.

Mr. Crisp said that the decision of the speaker was overturning an uninterrupted practice of 100 years, and was going directly in the face of arguments of distinguished republicans who had considered this very quesin the face of arguments of distinguished republicans who had considered this very question. This was the first time in the history of the government that a speaker had decided that he could go behind the roll call provided for by the constitution. This was more than a mere question of rules. It was a constitutional right—the right to have the yeas and nays entered on the journal—and it necessarily followed that when the constitution said the yeas and nays should be so entered, they could not be added to or taken from. To deny that proposition was to take from the constitution the value it was intended to possess. He then quoted from Speaker Blaine's ruling on the force bill, to the effect that the speaker had not the power to count or command, and declared the decision just made by Speaker Reed, would be the foundation of the greatest legislative frauds ever committed. Republican members were now invited by the speaker to sustain him in a ruling, which leading republicans have stated would have a tendency to bring scandal upon their names. The house was invited here, Mr. Crisp said, to pursue a course which Mr. Blaine had declared to be revolutionary. The remedy of the majority here was that which Mr. Blaine had declared (on that occasion) not to be a remedy—that was that the majority of the house could legislate, and which Mr. Blaine had declared (on that occasion) not to be a remedy—that was that the majority of the house could legislate, and so, today, the republicans of the house could legislate by simply bringing in their men and keeping a quorum of them in the house. The democrats stood on their constitutional right to have the yeas and nays entered on the journal, and when that right was exercised there could be no appeal from what the journal said as to who were present and voting by yeas and nays;

He quoted Mr. Garfield as denouncing a similar rule when it was proposed in his time, and asking the questions, "Who was to control the seeing of the speaker?" and "How do we know but that the speaker may see forty members (for his own purpose) more than there are in the house."

bers (for his own purpose) more than there are in the house."

He also quoted from remarks of Mr. Reed (present speaker) in the same debate when he used these words: "The coustitutional idea of quorum is not the physical presence of a majority of members of the house, but a majority of the members present and participating in the business of the house." [Triumphant cheers and clapping of hands on the semicorratic side and in the galleries.]

"I appeal," Mr. Crisp exclaimed, "from Philip drunk to Philip sober." [Another outburst of applause.]

outburst of applause.]

The speaker in his blandest manner and entirely free from every trace of excitement, "Will the house have the kindness to be in order." [Laughter].
Order was restored and Mr. Crisp went on with his argument.

TRYING TO CONFUSE CRISP. At this time there was another great tumult and uproar, Mr. Kerr and others desiring to put some questions to Mr. Crisp, but the speaker soon succeeded in restoring comparative order. Mr. Crisp said that Mr. Outhwaite's statement showed the force and power of Mr. Gar-field's argument, and he went on to quote another remark of Mr. Garfield, in the same field's argument, and he went on to quote another remark of Mr. Garfield, in the same discussion, that the speaker's count of the house under the existing rules could always be controlled by a count by tellers. "We have lived," said Mr. Crisp, "through a great civil war, when there was excitement almost unparalleled in the history of parliamentary action, yet during all these years, no man on this floor, no party, has ever before deemed it necessary to introduce a bill which would give the power of declaring the presence of members by the single voice of one person. [Applause on the democratic side.]

In common with every member on his side, he demanded that there should be a public exhibition of the question—a public record of the vote—that there should be tellers if demanded; that there should be the yeas and nays if demanded, and that the yeas and nays should determine how each member of the house voted. He quoted Shakespeare's lines:

"Like a scurry politician pretended To see the things he does not."
"Such politicians," he said, "might come here on either side, and under the force of circumstances and the impetuous passions of members, declare that they saw what they saw.

stillness and apathy on the republican side.

CANNON'S REMARKS.

Mr. Cannon replied to Mr. Crisp. Whatever might have been said bearing on the question by this great man, or by that great man, was only entitled to respectful consideration. After all, the question was to be decided here and now in the light of the crown judgment at the close of the mineteenth century. His observation had been that as the years rolled round, and as time changed, new remedies and reasonable remedies had to be found under the constitution for the difficulties and evils that had been tolerated for years, if those remedies did not violate the letter or spirit of the constitution. As they disagreed, they should consult the constitution. For, after all, in the constitution they had made of ascertaining what a quorum was, and if by the constitution there was a quorum present today, the country would sustain the house of representatives in going on and legislating. [Cheers on the republican side.]

The constitution provided as follows:

"Each house shall be the judge of election returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business."

turns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each house shall constitute a quorum to do business."

Did the constitution say that a majority should be required to vote for a measure, motion or resolution, in order to pass it at all? It merely said that a majority of each house should constitute a quorum to do business. He had no recollection during his service in the house of such a question being raised and decided, and the decision appealed from, but able democratic members—Randolph Tucker, of Virginia, and others—had taken the position in debate in the forty-sixth congress which the speaker took today. His colleague (Springer) had argued in the same line. Mr. Cannon laid down a proposition, in conclusion, that, by general parliamentary law and under the constitution, when a quorum is present, when that fact is certain, and when there is a majority voting in favor of a measure, that measure is adopted, whether it be a motion, resolution or law. He believed that good morals, a good constitution, good laws, good sound public common sense and decency, all demanded of the speaker, (when he amounced the fact of the presence of over fifty members, more than a quorom, and called their names) to declare the result of a vote as adopted by a majority of the house. He believed that thereby the constitution was satisfied in form and substance and that the people all over the country would justify that course. He would, therefore, vote to sustain the decision of the chair. [Applause on the republican side].

Mr. Carlisle said: "This decision, strictly speaking, is not a question of parliamentary law in the proper sense of the word. It is a question of constitutional law. No speaker ever sat in that chair and undertook to hold that less than a quorum can pass any bill or vote in this house. Until this morning, I repeat, no question of constitutional law. No speaker ever sat in that chair and undertook to hold that less than a quorum can pass any bill or vote in this house. Until this morning, I repeat, no presiding officer in this house has ever held that it was competent for less than a quorum of the members-elect to this house could pass any motion or bill, and all have, from the beginning of congress down to this day, held that a majority must not only be presant to constitute a quorum, but that the quorum must participate in legislation.

Mr. Carlisle then quoted the section of the constitution which provides for the keeping of the journal and for the entering upon it of the yeas and nays when demanded before a fifth of the members present, and also that section which states that less than a quorum can adjourn from day to day, and can compel the attendance of absent members. "Now, the constitution," continued Mr. Carlisle, "did not say in express terms that in order to transact tendance of absent members. "Now, the constitution," continued Mr. Carlisle, "did not say in express terms that in order to transact business a majority of the house should be present, but that a majority of the house should constitute a quorum to do business. And then it proceeded to specify distincly what those things were which the majority could do. He need not say to a body like this, consisting in a large part of lawyers, that it was a well-known recognized rule of the constitution that where the constitution or a statute enumerated certain things all others were excluded. When, therefore, the framers of the constitution provided that a majority of members-elect should constitute a quorum to do business, they saw that if it stopped there, less than a quorum could do nothing. Therefore they had provided that less than a quorum could do certain things. If the ruling made this morning was correct, there was no necessity for any provision of the constitution defining what less than a majority could do.

believe in fair play and justice, to hesitate long before you indorse this revolutionary and unconstitutional ruling. Having done this to the best of my humble ability; having maintained the position I assumed, I leave the case with the house in confident assurance that there are at least some honorable members who can rise above partisan prejudices; who can respect, and will respect, the ancient usages and customs of the fathers and who will be regardful of that constitution, whose sacredness we all acknowledge, and in which alone are vested the rights of the American people.

Loud cheers from the galleries and general hand clapping of democratic members greeted Mr. Crisp's peroration. There was complete stillness and apathy on the republican side.

CANNON'S REMARKS.

Mr. Cannon replied to Mr. Crisp. Whatever might have been said bearing on the question by this great man, or by that great man, was only entitled to respectful consideration. After all, the question was to be decided here and now in the light of the crown judgment at the close of the mineteenth century. His observation had been that as the years rolled round, and as time changed, new remissions and at the found of transacting business in the house. For over a hundred years the people had been secure that not less than a majority elected could was the courts had decided that they would look at the journal as final and conclusive evidence on questions of facts. Now, the people ware to be told for the first time that any number of men, however inconsiderable, might have been said bearing on the question that there were a certain number present besides those that voted and had that fact entered on the journal. He thought that while some inconvenience had resulted from the rule which had always prevailed, it was far more safe, far more in accordance with the courts of the far the courts are the courts are the courts and majority elected could pass laws binding upon them. In all that time the courts had decided that they would look at the journal as fi

E. W. B. MR. VANCE TO SPEAK TODAY

On the Bill to Encourage the Emigration of the Negro.

the Negro.

Washington, January 29.—Among the executive communications presented and referred, was one from the secretary of the navy transmitting "policy reports." The secretary says that he is perfectly satisfied of the capacity of this country to complete the light battle ships recommended by the department. As to what is considered an effective navy, the secretary refers to what he said, on that subject in his annual report.

Mr. Ingalls offered a long preamble and reso lution as to debts due by the southern states on Indian trust funds, and on the direct tax of 1861. The resolution directs the secretary of the treasury to furnish the senate with full information on the subject. Agreed to.

After some business of routine, Mr. Mitchell took the floor and delivered a short speech in advocacy of the bill for the free coinage of silver.

When he concluded Mr. Vance gave notice.

When he concluded Mr. Vance gave notice When he concluded Mr. Vance gave notice that he would, tomorrow, address the senate on the bill to provide for the emigration of the colored people, following Mr. Hampton. After a short executive session, the senate, at 3:30, adjourned.

UNCERTAIN FOURTH

FOR WHOSE FAVORS MANY ARE FIGHTING.

The Most Interesting Battle Ground of the Pending Congressional Campal m-Other

LAGRANGE, Ga., January 29 .- [Special.]-Judging from the commotion row disturbing the political waters of this—the bloody fourth listrict, and from the frequent notes made in THE CONSTITUTION'S columns, our approaching congressional campaign is going to be one of the liveliest ever fought in western Georgia. The candidate's and their friends are preparing for an aggressive campaign, and no quarter will be asked or given by any of them.

THE CANDIDATES. Troup will, as usual, prove the decisive battle ground, it being the pivotal county of the district, and each of the more prominent can-didates have warm friends here. I saw a letter from Judge S. W. Harris, of Carroll county a day or two since, in which he stated he would take the nomination if tendered him. He has made a good judge, and will have a strong following in all the upper coun-ties of the district. Hon. Harry R. Harris, of Meriwether, is shaking hands with his usual vigor, and never loses an opportunity to drive home some good agricultural advice when talking with his alliance brethren. Hon. Tom Grimes, of Muscogee, wants to retain his present seat, and it will take a gallant knight to unhorse our popular representative. He has and he and his friends are going to work to hold it. There are a number of other well-known gentlemen mentioned for the lace, but they are resting on their oars, saying nothing and watching developments.

TROUP'S CHOICE. Troup county, while holding no commandition in the district, has no canling position in the district, has no can-didate of her own. The friends of that gallant ntleman, accomplished scholar and finished orator, Dr. F. M. Rilley, would be glad to see him in the race, confident that he would prove an easy winner. His popularity is phenominal, as all recognize his eminent ability and fitness for the place, and could he be induced to become a candidate he will lend an enthusism and vigor to the canvass never before

But Dr. Rilley is not a candidate, nor is he likely to become one. I mention his name merely as a possibility and because it is one often mentioned in this and the adjoining counties in connection with congress

LAUGHING AT HIS CRIME.

▲ Negro Sets Fire to Property and Watches It Burn.

ALBANY, Ga., January 29 .- [Special.]-The other Sunday two negroes in Lee county had a difficulty. One of them, Isom Walters, was a renter on the R. T. The outcome of the misundderstanding was not satisfactory to the blacksmith, and he swore he would have revenge, and on Monday morning said he would burn him up. Isom thought nothing of the threats of his enemy. On that night he was awakened by the roaring of fire and the bright glare of flames. Hastening out he found that his corn crib and stable were a sheet of flame and burning rapidly. In the crib were 250 bushels of corn. The burning building was but a short distance from his house, but before he reached it it was past all hope of being extinguished, as the roof was falling in. Standing by the fire was Tom Porter, his enemy, exulting in his misfortune. He ran as he saw Isom approaching, and thought to escape, but the aid of the law was obtained and Porter arrested, charged with the terrible crime of arson. It is thought that the fire-bug intended to also burn down the house and all of his antagonist's possessions. The two mules of Isom were fortunately in the pasture, or they would have fallen victims to the flames. Porter's chance for the chaingang is good, and Redbone district is left without a single blacksmith.

dide, and carried back to his cell.

Jim says he ran out hoping Mr. Tuttle would shoot him. He has begun a plan of starvation, and says if he is not dead from that in the day of execution, he intends to butt his brains out against the cell walls.

Mr. C. C. David has completed the gallows, and is now building the inclosure twenty feet bigh, which will make the execution private, as ordered by Judge Miller.

A CURIOUS CASE. Mr. Ashley Howell Released on His Brother's

Statement.

WARRENTON, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—
The people of Warrenton are still in the dark to some extent, as to who are the guilty parties regarding the safe robbery at this place.
Ashley Howell, who was arrested on his brother John's statement, was released late Bunday evening on a sworn statement made by John in which he says that the detective told him if he would implicate Ashley in the deed that he would be released. Public sentiment is now in Mr. Ashley Howell's favor, and it is not believed that he had anything to do with the crime at all, as there was no evidence against him, and besides he owns half interest in the store that was robbed. John Howell and the negro, Dick Scruggs, were committed to jail, after the prelinary trial, in lefault of a $250 bond each.

Brunswick, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—At a meeting of the city council tonight the contract with the light and water company was annulled because of inferior lights given lately, and the failure to furnish such pressure as is sufficient to extinguish fires. The council also decided to have a paid fire department and electric alarms.

$25,000 Capital.

MACON, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—
Among the prospectors today is Mr. R. O.
Pate, of Hawkinsville, who wishes to form a company, with a capital stock of $25,000, to build a factory for the manufacture of a splendid agricultural implement, called the Burrows combination plow. He is willing to put in cash and the right and patent of the plow to the amount of $14,000, which leaves only $11,000 to be subscribed in Macon.

Nearly $5,000 Profit. Macon, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—A few months ago Professor G. R. Glenn purchased for $10,000 the Madison Jones property, fronting on Orange and College streets. Today this property was subdivided into lote and sold at public auction for $14,950, an advance of nearly $5,000.

The Safe Blowers.

Macon, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—Information was received in the city that last night, at Gorden, the safe of Mr. J. G. Pearson was blown open and robbed of eleven hundred dollars. An attempt was also made to drill and blow open the safe of J. J. Bridger.

FOREST FIRES IN THREE COUNTIES Play Havoc with Thousands of Acres of Turpentine Lands.

VALDOSTA, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—
This section has been suffering for four or five nths with a protracted and yet unbroken drought. It is hindering all classes of works ing, especially the operations of naval store produces. There is not moisture in the ground to produce sap enough to fill boxes with and the operatives have been blue for some weeks. Yesterday, to add to their misfortune, weeks. Yesterday, to add to their misfortune, a great wind storm swept over this portion of the state, and it is learned here today that large portions of Berrien, Lowndes, Clinch and Echols counties were swept by fires, which hot only destroyed millions of boxes in the turpentine farms, but destroyed also the fence panels by the thousands, and caused other serious losses to the farmers and country at large. In some instances outhouses and negro cabins were destroyed with all their contents. There is no estimating now the loss. Mr. Terry, the largest naval store manufacturer in southern Georgia, says that the turpentine men are practically runned. It is hoped here that it is not as bad as reported, but there are equal chances that it may be even worse. A citizen of Valdosta went thirty miles up the Georgia Southern and Florida railway yesterday, and returned in three hours, and reported that in the short interval between his going and coming half of the thirty miles had been swept over by fire on both sides of the railroad, and that the sun was hidden by the clouds of smoke which almost suffocated the passengers on the train.

Forest Fires in Dospherty.

Albany, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—

ALBANY, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—Forest fires are raging in Worth and Dougherty counties. Miles of fencing is being burned down. The farms of Everett, Hall, Davis, Harris and others have suffered. All last night they were cutting down trees to prevent the spread of the flames, which, owing to the prevailing drought, spread with alarming rapidity. The cribs and outhonses on the John Playis place parrowly escaped folling a John Plavis place narrowly escaped falling a prey to the fire. They have started from burning brush heaps in clearing lands, and the high winds have caused their unusual de-

A SUIT OF CLOTHES.

Were They Left on the Banks of the Ocon

by a Suicide or a Tramp?
ATHENS, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—A nice looking suit of clothes were found yesterday on the banks of the Oconee, near Linton's pond. They at once excited suspicion, and it was thought that some one had committed suicide. Investigation shows that a few days ago a man, calling himself John Prescott, appeared and said he was an old army officer. He told a negro named John Smithson that he was tired of the world and intended to kill himself. The clothes at once associated themselves with this man in the minds of those who had seen him, and it was thought that it was a case of suicide. Several gentlemen, however, say they think it was a beggar who was going around our streets a few days since, and that he got a new suit of clothes and left his own on the river's bank. day on the banks of the Oconee, near Linton's

THEY DIDN'T HAVE THE HANGING, So They Turned in and Had a First-Class

ALBANY, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]— News has just reached this city of a riot which occurred at Morgan, Calhoun county, yester-day. A negro was to have been hanged there yesterday, but he had been granted a reprieve. A crowd which had gathered to witness the hanging, began drinking, and became riotous. A crowd of drunken negroes ran against a white child and knocked it down. This precipitated the difficulty, and a general shooting commenced between white and blacks. Three negroes were shot and the same number of white men. Young John Arnold, a farmer, is supposed to be mortally wounded. His two brothers were also shot.

The Burglar Was Nabbed.

GREENVILLE, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—
Yesterday morning about 1 o'clock a strange negro, who gives his name as Henry Williams, was caught by the watchman and citizens in the store of Mr. Robert Spivey. He had carefully selected about $100 worth of nice goods, consisting of wearing apparel, which were neatly packed in a box. He was just ready to decamp with his booty when captured. His presence in the store was discovered by the light shining through the cracks of a window shutter. He first broke into a blacksmith shop and obtained the tools with which to enter Mr. Spivey's store. He was promptly jailed, the sheriff first asking the negro if he hailed from Lutherville or its vicinity.

Orphan Heirs.

Macon, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—Ordinary C. M. Wiley is in receipt of a letter from Mr. H. D. Bryant, of Canton, stating that the mother of children named Hodge, at the orphan asylum in Macon, was dead and the children were entitled to certain means which the executor desired to pay over to the proper guardian or representative of the children.

The Fugitive Brought Back. LAFATETE, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—
Mr. John Vitatoe who, had several true bills against him, and who had given bond, skipped his bond and went to Dade county, but he stopped too near home. Mr. Bagwell, his bondsman, hearing of his whereabouts, had him arrested and delivered to the authorities, and he is now resting, securely lodgded in jail.

THE BLACK BISHOPS.

They Discuss the Race Prejudice Which Exists in Selma.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 29.—[Special.]—
The annual session of the bench of bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal church convened here today. The following bishops were present: Wayman, of Kentucky and Tennessee; Wald, of Missouri, Kansas, Colorado and Montana; Turner, of New England and Pennsylvania; Disney, of Arkansas and Mississippi; Gaines, of Alabama; Arnet, of South Carolina and Florida; Tanner, of the West Indies and the Bermudas, and Grant, of Texas. The session was held in secret. Reports from the various Episcopal districts were read and were altogether favorable, showing a remarkable growth of the church. No allusion was made to the race question, save in the discussion as to the selection of the next place of meeting. Selma, Ala., had been decided upon at the last session as the place, but the conference changed its mind and selected Philadelphia. As a reason for this it was urged that the race prejudice in Selma was a very great objection. Allusion was made to the persecution of Rev. M. E. Bryant, who, it is said, was forced to leave that city. Services were held in one of the churches tonight, at which Bishop Tanner preached. There was no allusion to the race problem in his sermon. The conference will continue in session for several days. Exists in Selma. several days.

SHORT TELEGRAMS.

WADLEY, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—The citizens of this place were shocked Monday morning at the death of Mrs. N. C. Donovan. Mr. Donovan woke this morning only to find his wife dead by his side. It is not known how long she had been dead, though she was cold and almost stiff. Mrs. Donovan has been known for years as the proprietoress of the Donovan house, and the public at large will miss her pleasant fare at the hotel. ALBANY, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]—G. E. THE CENTRAL ROAD.

THE STATEMENT OF GENERAL MAN-AGER GABBETT.

Which Have Been Made Recently About the Management of the Central Road, land Tells Why Trains Were Taken Off.

SAVANNAH, Ga., January 29.—[Special.]— General-Manager Cecil Gabett, referring to the attacks on the Central's mangement in the New York papers, said today:

"The statement made as to the numerous vrecks on the system injuring and destroying many cars, is grossly and maliciously incorrect. Except on the Columbus and Western, there have been no wrecks to spreak of. On that division one or two derailments of freight trains occurred recently of a pretty serious character. That is to say, there were a half dozen or more cars badly broken up, and in one instance there was the loss of one life. Of the accident near Opelika the other day, a dispatch was sent out stating that four or five

It has many sharp curves and heavy grade Then it has only been in operation for a little Then it has only been in operation for a little over a year. It takes time for engineers and other trainmen to become accustomed to a road of such a nature, to learn how to properly handle their trains. The same is true of other roads, under the same conditions elsewhere. The accidents on that road, too, were due to orders having been misinterpreted or not strictly complied with."

lives had been lost.

THE DISCONTINUANCE OF TRAINS. Referring to the discontinuance of the pass enger trains, the general manager said:

"That was the result of a careful analysis made by the traffic manager and myself, conclusively proving that the money we received from running them was not sufficient to meet the expense incurred. They were not paying us, and there was no immediate prospect that they would. Every day they ran the road lost money by the operation. Since the Central is run to make money and not to lose, common sense convinced us that it was best to discontinue that part of the service. This was done on last Sunday. Twelve trains were discontinued. One ran between Atlanta and Macon, one between Columbus and Americus, one between Columbus and Birmingham, two on the Montgomery and Eufaula, two on the Southwestern, one on the Port Royal road and four on other different branches. These trains were taken off for no other reason than that they were not paying the cost of running them, let alone proving a profit.

THE ROLLING STOCK. from running them was not sufficient to meet

"The statement has been made, I believe, he continued, "that the reason some were discontinued was because the road did not have engines enough to run them. That is equally as absurd as the other statements. We have just received thirteen locomotives and expect just received thirteen locomotives and expect to receive, in the early part of next month, twenty more. Of the latter, sixteen will be for freight and two for the passenger service. The other two are shifters. We have an abundance of passenger coaches, too, and in a few days will add to the equipment twenty-three more baggage, mail and passenger coaches. In addition to these, there have been ordered fifty cabooses, and the company is now receiving 2,030 freight cars. These are in addition to an order of 1,000, the last of which were received in December, making 3,030 inside of a year. It is easy to disprove the balance of the dispatch about the earnings decreasing, and the company falling into a poor financial condition.

THE BUSINESS INCREASED.

THE BUSINESS INCREASED. "It is doing a larger business than was done last year, and is consequently earning more The report for the first twenty-three money. The report for the first twenty-thre days of this month alone shows an increase over last January of nearly $910,000. Speaking in a general manner of the condition of the Central, Mr. Gabbett called attention to the Central, Mr. Gabbett called attention to the fact that every day steel rails of sixty-nine and a half pounds weight are being received and laid, replacing the lighter rails on the main stem. The ballasting of the main stem with stone is also being pushed rapidly. The company's crushersget out 350 cubic yards of rock a day for this purpose, or sufficient to lay 900 feet of track. The ballasting is being exceptionally well done, the stone being placed to a depth of six inches under the ties. He claims that the service afforded passengers was excellent, and cited the fact that the statement for January 25th showed that twenty-two trains were run on that day on the main stem, nineteen on the Southnewstern, and fifteen on the South Carolina. Until the change was made there were five Western, and fifteen on the South Carolina. Until the change was made there were five passenger trains running each way daily on the Montgomery and Eufaula road, entirely too many for the traffic that offered."

REID B. BARNES ACQUITTED.

he Trial Justice Finds that He Was Jus tified.

OPELIKA, Ála., January 29.—[Special.]—
The preliminary trial of Reid B. Barnes, for shooting Lon-Carroll, here on Thursday evening last, has been in progress before Justice J. C. Meadors, since Monday morning. After hearing all the testimony, which occupied the time until yesterday noon, the judge withheld his decision until 9:30 this morning. Below is given the decision:

in decision that 3-3-5 this meeting.

The court finds:

1. That C. A. Carroll was killed on the evening of Thursday, the 23d instant, in Opelika, Lee county, Alabama, by a pistol shot fired by the defendant, fendant,

2. That the deceased was a man of a turbulent, violent, revengeful and dangerous character.
3. That the defendant's character for peace and quietness was good.
4. The deceased made repeated threats against the defendant which were communicated to him.
5. The defendant did not provoke or encourage the difficulty.
6. The Advandant at the time of the deceased made.

6. The defendant at the time of the shooting had reasonable apprehension of danger to his life, or f grievous bodily harm.

7. The defendant could not have retreated without increasing his peril.

8. The defendant, in shooting at the time the he did, acted in self-defense.

8. The defendant, in shooting at the time that he did, acted in self-defense.

The court made the following order:
On the 28th day of January, 1880, came C. A. L. Samford, who prosecutes for the state, and the defendant in his own proper person and by counsel, the defendant pleads not; guilty; and it appearing to the courf from the evidence, there is not probable cause to believe that the defendant is guilty, it is, therefore, ordered by the court that the defendant be discharged from custody, and allowed to go hence.

The decision is considered a just one, and could not have been otherwise according to the testimony.

HOW HE WORKED KNOXVILLE. A Nice Looking Young Man Who Invested Largely in Beal Estate.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., January 29.—A gentlemanly-appearing young man arrived here a few days ago on a "prospecting tour." He went to Middlesborough, Ky., a new industrial town, and was so pleased that he bought real estate on a large scale, paying some money down. He came here last Thursday and opened an account with the Knoxville Savings bank. He deposited $2,000 in money and some checks. He was of pleasing address and had letters of introduction from Middlesborough banks. It now turns out he was an expert crook. He was credited by the Knoxville Savings bank with cash and checks. One check was certified with cash and checks. One check was certified and was for $1,000,000 on a New York bank. A and was for $1,000,000 on a New York bank. A telegram from New York pronounces the certificate a fogery. He took a certified check from a bank here, made small purchases and got the balance in cash. He went to the bank to draw out his money, but fortunately some of the checks had come. The bank loses $1,000. The People's tank of Middlesborough, loses $6,000 by a similar scheme; another bank there $2,000, and a citizen $5,000 on an indorsement. Other parties here lost various sums. The total stealing thus far discovered amounts to $15,000 or $20,000. He disappeared from here suddenly Priday night. His rascality was not made public until yesterday and roin here suddenly -rhady night. His ras-cality was not made public until yesterday and today a reward of $750 is offered for his arrest. He is about twenty-eight years old and evi-dently an ex-bank clerk. He gave his name as C. L. Paton.

PHILADELPHIA, January 29.—The Philadel-phia Press has cabled its London correspondphia Press has cabled its London correspondent to ask Mr. Parnell if he had anything to say concerning the reported destitution of his mother at Bordentown. In a cable dispatch received tonight, the Press correspondent says that he was unable to find Mr. Parnell on account of the mystery as to his London address. He received a letter, however, from George Lewis, Mr. Parnell's solicitor, this message: "Mr. Parnell does not care to dismessage: "Mr. Parnell does not care to dis-cuss the story often printed in America about his mother's poverty. It is constantly cropping out. He is an affectionate son, and that is enough for the American people to know."

HE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA By Christopher Columbus, in 1492, opened the way for many wonderful developments, but to none of greater importance to suffering humanity than Swift's Specific, the world-renowned remedy for Blood Poison.

"About three years ago I was troubled with poison in my blood, very irritating and painful boils breaking out all over my body. For two years I suffered with them, trying all sorts of remedies and doctors' prescriptions without avail. Becoming disgusted with doctors, and medicines I had used up to this time, I concluded to try S. S. S., and the result was far beyond my expectations. A few bottles left me in better health than I had been since childhood. I consider S. S. S. the only medicine that will thoroughly purify poisoned blood."

T. K. MAYFIELD, Horse Cove, Ky.

BE SURE TO GET THE GENUINE Like every other good thing, S. S. S. is imitated and aped by hundreds of people, who prey on the credulity of suffering humanity. Do not be imposed on by any of these imitations. Many of them contain poisons, and are dangerous. There is only one S. S. S., and there is nothing like it. EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,

STATE OF GEORGIA.
Atlanta, January 10th, 1890.

THE ADVERTISEMENT HERETOFORE PUBlished, inviting bids for the Okefenokee swamp, and adjoining lands in this state, belonging to the state, under authority of an act of the legislature approved October 29th, 1880, which has been already published for sixty days, having been decided to be defective and insufficient, I have determined in the interest of the state, and in order to carry out the true intent of the legislature, to re-advertise said property according to the provisions of said act.

Bids are hereby invited for said property, under executive of Georgia, who will publicly open all same.

No bid will be received unless it is for a higher sum than 12½ cents per acre, and is accompanied by a deposit of $5,000.

The time for receiving bids will expire at ten (10) o'clock a.m., on Tuesday, the eighteenth (18) day of March, 1800, and the bids will be publicly opened at my office immediately after the time expires for receiving them.

The property will be awarded as provided in said act, and according to the provisions and conditions of said act, copies of which will be furnished upon application to this office:

AND SWEET FIFTEEN,
Miss Daisy Wray is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boykin, of our county, but was adopted by Mrs. Wray, of Savannah, several years ago. Last week she came up from Savannah to her father's, and yesterday Mr. Potter went down in a buggy and got her, and together they started for Mr. Walker's. On the way the horse became frightened and ran away, throwing them both from the buggy, and hurting Mr. Potter right badly. However, they walked on to the appointed place and were married by Rev. Mr. Carden, of the Baptist church. WHEN FIRST THEY MET.

It was only a few months ago that the young couple met each other and began to revel in love's young dream. Since then they have loved each other with an ardent devotion which culminated in the happy event of yesterday. They both have many friends, who earnestly trust that they may never have other reason than to bless the day that fate threw them together.

Colonel Wash Roach, attorney-at-law, 132
Broughton street, Savanuah, Ga., says that he has for five years suffered with severe stricture and ulceration of the rectum. After having tried many of the most eminent physicians in Georgia, and having traveled nearly all over the country in search of health, I found no relief until 1 put myself under Dr. W. J. Tucker, and in the short space of three moths I find myself nearly well.

Mrs. H. P. Stevens, an estimable lady of Way-cross, Ga., says: Five years ago I was given up to die by the best physicians of southeast, Georgia, all of whom said I could not live but a few weeks. As the last resot I determined to try Dr. W. J. Tucker, of Atlanta, Ga. In less than three months the doctor had me restored to health. I am confident I would have died had it not been for his marvelous skill.

W. H. Phillips, Simsboro, La., says: I have suffered for ten years with liver disease and chronic diarrhoea, and after being treated by Dr. W. J. Trecker a very short time am almost entirely well.

W. J. Tucker a very short time am almost entirely well.

Dr. Fred B. Palmer, Atlanta, Ga., one of the best known and most popular druggists of Georgia, and also himself a physician, suffered for many years with piles, was cured by Dr. W. J. Tucker and remains perfectly well.

Mrs. J. F. Kinsey, Camak, Ga.: Spinal disease, nervous prostration and diseases peculiar to her sex, coufined to her bed, helpless for many months, treated by Dr. W. J. Tucker three or four years ago, and since that time has been able to attend to her household duties.

Mrs. J. H. Seme, Dawson, Ga., says: I have experienced the most remarkable benefit from Dr. W. J. Tucker's treatment, gained fifteen or twenty pounds in the last few months. I advise all suffering ladies to give him a trial.

Hon. E. E. Foy, Egypt, Ga., says as suffered for many years with a chronic malady, was cured by Dr. W. J. Tucker three years ago, and loses no opportunity to tell the afflicted of Dr. Tucker's skill.

The above statements are all true, no sane man would publish them i they were not, and if you do not besatisfy yourself. I treat successfully chronic diseases and weaknesses of both sexes. I treat all who have dealings with me honestly and conscientiously. I am responsible for what I say and do professionally, financially and individually. INDIGESTION AND CHRONIC DIARRHOEA CURED. Mrs. Jane H. Gaston, 312 Luckie street, Atlanta, Ga., says: "I first had indigestion, which ran inte chronic dysentery with complete loss of appetite. I was an invalid confined to my bed nearly all the time. A friend recommended Royal Germetuer, I used two bottles and was restored to health. I cheerfully recommended it."

Mrs. E. J. LaHatte, No. 30 West Garnett street, Atlanta, says: For several years I have been troubled with sciatic rheumatism and general debility. My health had completely run down. I was extremely nervous; had no appetite; could not rest well at night; could only drag through my house duties. Since taking three bottles of Royal Germetuer I find myself greatly improved; my appetite has been restored: I sleep well, and consider myself in every respect greatly benefited. I can go up stairs and am able to attend to my duties once more, and am almost freelof aches and pains. I consider Royal Germetuer a reliable and grand medicine.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 30, 1890.

Save the Forest and Save the Farm. The pine forests of Georgia are worth $160,000,000, by the moderate estimate of the census, and it is worth our while to take care of them. Of the sixteen billion feet standing, it is thought at least one million feet are cut annually. The census estimate made by Mr. W. G. Norwood, of Blackshear, only purports to be an approximation, and may be much too small; but, even if we suppose the extent of the pine forest to be twice as large as it has been stated, the ground will be cut over at the present rate in thirty years-the period allowed by lumbermen for the recovering of land by the natural growth of pine. In other words, we are cutting the pine crop about as fast as it comes to maturity, if not a little faster, and if the lumber business continues the rapid increase of the past decade, we will soon be reaping ahead of the harvest. Forestry in Georgia is already a live topic, affecting the interests of this generation. This magnificent resource, worth half the returned value of the real and personal property of the state, excluding railroads, ough certainly to be carefully looked after. Well cared for, it is an endowment from which we can collect the interest every year, but, wastefully and wantonly squandered, it is a prodigal's portion, that will dwindle away and leave us literally living on husks. For mark you, when we lose the forests we lose the farms. Without their friendly offices we would pray in vain for seasonable rains, and, if our thirsty prayers should be answered, we would not be able to turn the water to good account without the storage capacity of the forests. This is the way the question comes home to us, but it has a larger application, which we cannot afford

The American Forestry association is pressing upon the attention of congress the absolute necessity for some protection to the great western forests of the national domain. They cover fifty to seventy-five million acres, and the annual loss by fire and depredations is $10,000,000. The secretaries of the interior during the last three administrations have recommended that these lands be withdrawn from sale and protected from depredations until a commission of experts can determine what regions it is necessary to keep permanently in forest. This is just what the Forestry association asks congress to do. In its memorial the committee says:

The greatest value of these forests to the present and future inhabitants of the western states is in the assistance they render to agriculture through their influences on the water supply and the climate. The mere loss of national property, though measured by millions, can be endured. The absence of a timber supply at home can, in a measure, be made up for by purchases from more prudent foreigners, and by the substitution of other materials in the place of wood products. But there is absolutely nothing, natural or artificial, that will take the place of the mountain forests as a regulator of rain-fall and water supply. Every and region without forests is a region of long droughts, varied by destructive storms. Every mountain region without forests is a region whose streams, instead of watering the valleys below with a constant and adequate flow, alter-mately dwindle into insignificance and swell into raging torrents, not only flooding the country, but covering it with rocks and sands from the mountain sides. Great as is the damage, caused by the loss of mountain forests, to a region naturally well watered, it would render agriculture impossi-ble in that extensive district which has so re-cently begun to be rendered fertile by the use of 1rrigation. No system of reservoirs, even the most costly and ingenious, can take the place of the forests on any large scale. The most that it can do is to co-operate with them.

The truth of these statements has been demonstrated over and over by the experience of older nations, who have been made mainfully aware of the necessity for taking care of their forests, and are now engaged in the tedious and costly work of replant-

A senate committee, after careful investigation, has recently come to the conclusion that it will take six million dollars to irrigate the rich mesas of Idaho, and an appropriation of that amount will probably be recommended. Natute did more for Georgia than Idaho, but, if we do not take care of the forests we have, we will at some time not very remote be put to the necessity of a like expense for the salvation of our agricultural interests. Even then we cannot replace the work of forests by engineering. Only the slow process of replanting will fully repair the damage. Forests furnish the cheapest and best irrigation.

Looking to Atlanta.

In western North Carolina several counties are discussing the question of voting aid to railroads. In the immediate vicinity of Brevard they have two lines in contemplation, and the question will be decided early in February as to whether aid will be voted to the Atlanta, Asheville and Baltimore railroad or to the French Broad railroad.

These lines pass through the most picturesque part of North Carolina, and will greatly benefit in developing the vast stores of mineral wealth in the mountains of that state. The Atlanta, Asheville and Baltimore is to be an outlet for the Baltimore and Ohio system from Lexington, Va., they now have a line running from the main stem at Harper's Ferry. It is a rough country to build a road through, but some very energetic men are pushing it, and there are many potent reasons for its construction, outside of the fact that it will give the magnificent system north of us an outlet south. For many miles in North Carolina the road will cross some of the finest beds of iron ore to be found in the United States, the Cranberry mines being also on the line.

It will give a short line to transport the Pocahontas coal and coke from Virginia to our iron fields. Inexhaustible stores of marble, corundum, talc and minerals of various kinds, in the greatest profusion, will be found along this contemplated line; and there is no section of this continent that has greater variety of useful timber.

Whenever it is necessary to agitate the natter at this end, we are prepared to do so. We are gratified at the interest that is being taken by our neighbors in North Carolina, to make a closer connection with us, and feel complimented that Atlanta has been selected as a suitable terminal point for this great line, Bristol, Tenn., being the objective point north for the road.

A Great Battle Is On.

There is a man in Washington who is fighting a great battle for Georgia, and upon the result the prosperity of a large section of this state is staked. That man is Mr. Waite, an entomologist of the department of agriculture, and the army he is fighting is an army of insects, the bacteria of the pear blight. They are a feeble folk, but they are mighty to destroy. Though thousands of them are required to form a line of battle an inch long, they can sack and pillage a whole region in a week They come without warning, as noiselessly as the night, without the shock or smoke of battle, but they leave behind them only the dead leafless trees, grim monuments of their victory.

The traffic manager of the Savannah Florida and Western railroad, within whose territory the Le Conte pear orchards are mostly comprehended, says that in a few years this crop is likely to compare in value with the Florida oranges. He is informed by those well posted on the acreage of the plant that when these trees all come to bearing. he will find it more than he can do to furnish rolling stock to carry the pears to market. This was the outlook last year when the blight was first discovered. Up to that time it was thought that the Le Conte pear was not subject to blight, and immense orchards were planted without fear of such a trouble. This faith was rudely shaken by the investigation patiently and thoroughly made by Mr. Waite last summer.

But that was not the end of it. Mr. Waite, who is with one exception, the best posted man in America on this subject, took some of the bacteria home with him, and has since been cultivating and studying them under the microscope, with a view to the discovery of an effective fungicide. He thinks a solution of copperas will do the work if applied with an atomizer when the trees are in bloom. If this hope is realized, the discovery will be worth millions of dollars to Georgia.

The man or the insect; which will prevail? Here's a wager on the man!

The Contest in the House.

The infamous ruling of Speaker Reed, in the federal house of representatives, yesterday, in creating a quorum unknown to law and to precedent, but shows again the revolutionary character of the republican party. It is a party which respects neither law. compacts, nor public decency, and subordinates every aim to the single one of success.

The gallant protest made by Judge Crisp, of Georgia, was in the right line. It is time for democrats to assert themselves, to fight every inch of the way, and to stand together as one man, repudiating side issues, and looking to the success of the only party in whose hands the liberties of the country can be safe.

The present republican majority is as ma lignant as the one which backed up Thad Stevens after the war. It is brazen, impudent and unprincipled. The duty of every democrat is to stand at the front with his fellows, eye to eye, and shoulder to shoulder, to fight for the rights of the people under the constitution.

That is a grand enough mission for any political party!

A Promising Bivalve.

There's a world in the Georgia oyster, and with our sword we'll open it. Treasirer Hardeman says it may be made to yield the state a revenue greater than all her taxable property.

For several winters the oysters on our coast have been systematically cultivated. and for several seasons those brought to Atlanta have compared in flavor and fatness with their luscious contemporaries of Chesapeake bay. The Brunswick Times reports a shipment of three carloads from that place Monday, and this is only a beginning The bill passed by the last legislature will do much to stimulate cultivation. The efforts so far made show that the oyster responds as readily to attention in Georgia waters as he does on the northern shores and some bivalves brought to Atlanta from the coast within the last two years were equal in flavor to the aristocratic Blue Point, which has so long held the first place with epicures. Every year we wonder more at the resources of our state. And now they tell us there's sugar in the cotton seed. We verily believe there is sugar in the gourd in Georgia.

An Important Question.

The legislature, at its last session, changed the law creating the board of commissioner of roads and revenues for Fulton county by providing for the election by the people of the commissioners. The new law further provides that the successors of the two comissioners, whose terms expire April 1st, next, before the regular election, shall be chosen by the grand jury at the spring term and the two thus chosen shall serve until January 1st.

The grand jury just drawn will be called upon to act as formerly in selecting two men, who are to serve until January 1 1891. Their successors will be elected at the regular election to be held in October. The commissioners whose terms are about to expire are Mr. M. C. Kiser and Colone George W. Adair-two as good men as ever served on the board. There is some very important county work ow under way—the bridge across the Chathoochee river on Green's Ferry road, the w addition to the county courthouse, the ounty convict barracks, and several other important items. It so happens that the two gentlemen whose terms soon expire have been more directly connected in shaping up and pushing forward the improvements above named than any of the other commissioners. They are personally cognizant of all the details of the work, and no two gentlemen in Fulton county will take more pride in the completion of the work, or one better qualified to have it properly done than they. All this work will probably be completed during the present year, and we understand that it is not the purpose of these gentlemen to be candidates at the October DON'T ATLANTA GROW? election, nor are they, strictly speaking, candidates now.

But we think it would be a mistake 'to turn these gentlemen out now, for their serv-ices are particularly valuable while the above work is under way.

We hope the grand jury, which is an eminently intelligent one, will not permit these two gentlemen to be displaced. The safest and most prudent course on this important question is to elect them for the short term. When the election before the people comes off, we can select new men, if a majority of the people of the county so de-sire. Mr. Kiser and Colonel Adair are men who would not scramble for office of trust or honor. They are efficient, highly honorable men, who will faithfully discharge their duties, and unless there is some good reason why they should not be requested by the grand jury of Fulton county to help finish the important work above noted, we are of the opinion that the grand jury has but one thing to do-re-elect them.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

THE national house of representatives needs a nelson to enlighten the members on absenteeism. ome may be treated by the French plan of cutting off their heads to encourage the others.

We have to remark that the press of this coun ry has been lying prodigiously about Foraker.-commercial Gazette. Yes, yes, the republican press.

No one enjoys the by-play at Albany more than THERE is a cat in the meal tub at Albany and Thomas C. Platt is the cat. He wants to make the world's fair a republican machine, but the public-spirited citizens of New York, includin g eminent gentlemen of both parties, declare that the bill submitted should not be distorted for partisan purposes. THERE is an interesting struggle going on be-tween the English and French languages in Canada. Both are of legal use, and a good deal of confusion results. It is especially galling to the English that the language of the country to which they give allegiance cannot be made to answer all purposes, but must sometimes give way to the French. The experiment may lead to interesting results. A few centuries of such mix-ture in England after the Norman conquest re-sulted in the most copious and flexible language on the face of the earth. What a further admixture of French will do remains to be seen. THE late Pig Iron Kelley never lost anything by his name. When he was in Germany some year ago, Bismarck heard of his arrival, and invited him to a personal interview. Mr. Kelley spent an hour or so with the premier, and was treated with distinguished honor. He afterwards learned that for this compliment he was indebted to the sou briquet of "Pig Iron Kelley." Bismarck under-stood it to mean the same thing as the term "Iron Duke" applied to Wellington. Being a man of blood and iron himself, he naturally liked the association. Mr. Kelley thanked Don Piatt for the title of honor, which the journalist had put on him as a joke, and expressed a wish that "Pig Iron Kelley" might be his epitaph.

The National Fire Insurance company, of Hart-ford, Conn., applied yesterday to Comptroller-General Wright for a license to do business in Georgia. As soon as their representative had re Georgia. As soon as their representative had re-ceived the necessary papers he presented himself at the state treasurer's office and deposited a twenty-five thousand dollar bond. The bond is for the benefit of the policy holders, and is left with the state treasurer in accordance with a law passed by the legislature of 1877. Colonel Harde-man says that never since the law went into force has an order been received to sell a bond. And since he has been state treasurer not more than

A Suggestion for the Monument.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: One of the lovelie laces in all the city to locate the me our beloved Grady (and Hill) is that beautiful piece of ground lying between the capitol, from the Hunter street side, and Georgia railroad, owned by St. Philip's Episcopal church and the Georgia railroad. Let the state buy this block, remove all buildings, as well as the round house of the rail-road, grade and beautify it, and let us have one spot of earth that can be looked upon with pride by all Georgians as a fit and proper place for these sacred remembrances of our distinguished dead. Let us not have to seek distinguished dead. Let us not have to seek among the points of streets and corners for a location, but let the state he loved so well and served so faithfully buy from the owners of this spot a location that will ever stand as a monument to her gratitude for services of two of the grandst men the south ever produced. SOME PEOPLE YOU MEET.

A millionaire who cares more for art than h does for money—. Is a rara avis, you say? Possibly. Yet just such a man is Mr. M. J. O'Shaughnessy, who spent yesterday in Atlanta. Mr. O'Shaughnessy is too well known in the south to need any sort of introducion. He was one of the first men to realize that tion. He was one of the first men to resulte that there was money, and big money, in cotton seed oil, and the result is seen in the big fortune which he is able to call his own. Brunswick and Huntsville bear many evidences of the faith which he, his brother and their business associates have in southern properties. At Huntsville, the Huntsville hotel, the favors Monte Sano hotel, the palatial resithe famous Monte Sano hotel, the palatial resi dence of Mr. J. F. O'Shaughnessy are among the notable monuments to the two brothers, while at Brunswick they are almost too numerous to

"There is something absolutely wonderful in the steady growth of all the southern cities," said Mr. O'Shaughnessy in discussing a matter of which he never tires talking. "Every cit in this section shows it. You find it in Atlanta, you find it in Brunswick, you find it in Nashville, Chattanoogahere. You see the growth on all sides, but not account for it. That is, you cannot everywhere you cannot account for it. That is, you trace it to any one agency. The only reason that can be given is that eastern capitalists are turning toward the south as a field for investment in Do I think it will continue? Who certainly. The signs were never as favorab as they are today. There is no trouble in getting oney for any good scheme. Capital is ready to me south, and if you have anything valuable to sell you can get a good price for it.'

Mr. O'Shaughnessy is passionately devoted to art, and his home, "Kildare," bears every evidence of this fact. Born in Dublin, almost his earliest ollections are of making charcoal ske ong the works of the sters in the Academy of Fine mong at Dublin. Every summer, when his boys come home from college, Mr. O'Shaughnessy goes on sketching tours with them. THE ENLISTMENT LAW

COLONEL GEORGE MERCER TELLS HY HE THINKS IT WON'T WORK.

There Is No Power Except a Man's Honor Which Will Make Him Keep the Contract-The State Encampment. The form of enlistment which was adopted by the military advisory board will be of little or no practical use.

Colonel George A. Mercer did not return to his home in Savannah until yesterday evening, and before his departure he gave some interesting facts concerning several of the changes and innovations adopted by the ad-

"In the first place," he continued, "there is absolutely no means in Georgia of making such an enlistment binding, excepting a man's honor. I don't suppose that any young man wishing to join a military association would hesitate to sign any document agreeing to serve one year. After he had tried it for three months, he can send in his resignation and should the state refuse to accept, what are they going to do about it. He can just quit and there's an end of it."

"Then you think the enlistment law is no good?"
"I don't say that, because I believe it will serve a very useful purpose by enabling men when they wish to change their residence to enter another company without difficulty. company when he has served in another, un-less he has paid all his dues and leaves his first company with a good record. It is often difficult to ascertain if applicants are desirable members under the present system. Under that which we have just adopted, every man when he leaves will get an honorable dis-charge if he deserves it. That will be a certificate to enter any other military organization he wishes to.

"What do you think of the state encamp-

"I have no doubt that it will be of great assistance to the soldiers of the state and will do them an immense amount of good. This year, of course, the encampment will be a sort of experiment. There is no means of compelling the men to go into camp if they don't want to, so we can form no idea of the number of companies who will take advantage of the op-

"Is there no way of finding out how many men will be at Augusta?"

"The adjutant general is trying to get an approximate number in order to find out if the state will have sufficient tents. He will issue a circular to the captain of every company asking him to notify him immediately if his company will be in the field, and also the number of men in his command. To take part in the encampment the law requires that a company shall be composed of at least twenty-eight enlisted men and two officers. Less than that number will debar a company from being at the encampment. It is a problem how many companies will be able to muster the required number of men. I have no doubt that most of the young men would wish to go, but many of them may find it difficult to get leave of absence from their business occupations for a week."

"You think then, that it would benefit the

"I have no doubt of it. It would do then more good than anything else. We tried it last year in Savannah, when one of our companies went into camp on Tybee island. I visitedithe camp officially, and I found the men wonderfully improved. A regular army officer went with them and gave them instructions, which have proved of lasting benefit.' "What do you think of the new state uni-

"It was an improvement very much needed. In a regiment where every company is clothed in a different uniform from that worn by others the effect is grotesque, but when they are all clothed alike they will present a much more soldierly appearance. The idea of the advisory board was to furnish the uniforms to the troops for nothing, if possible. The legislature passed a law that in future not more than $1,000 of the $11,000 given by the federal government to support the Georgia militia, should be taken in arms. We, therefore, will take from the government enough cloth to make the uniforms, and a committee

Not by any means. When they turn out on any company occasion, or at their own entertainments, they will be allowed to wear what uniforms they please. When, however, they are called out for inspection, or when they are called out by the governor as state troops, they will be obliged to wear the regulation uniform."

AT THE THEATER.

Last season when the famous Emmet came to Atlanta, his audience was not a little disap-pointed in the performance. This year he comes with a stronger play and a stronger cast than over, and his reception last night was decidedly the reverse of that last one. "Fritz" was never more delightful. Seen in his new play, "Uncle Joe," he is at his

Seen in his new play, "Uncle Joe," he is at his best, and those who had the pleasure of seeing him play last night, will never forget the pleasant, happy-go-lucky "Fritz Vou Wolfenstein" he impersonated so well. The play is in itself taking, and with Emmet in the leading roleit is without an equal of its kind on the American stage. The plot is very good, and gives the star many exportunities to display the talents which he possesses.

Mr. Emmet is not the only good actor in the cast, though, of course none can equal him, but in their respective parts they are, with very few exceptions, all good. Mr. Tiffe, as Baron Von Wolfenstein, Louis Grisel as Uncle Joe Parker, Wolfenstein, Louis Grisel as Uncle Joe Parker, and Mr. Utter as Johnny Johns, and Miss Maud E. White as Collie Parker, the heroine, are all very good, while much could be said for Messrs. Mann and St. Aubyul. Miss Howe, as Lady Grace Howard, and Miss Shields as Mrs. Parker, were also very good.

But the babies! They captivated the audience from the first appearance throughout the entire play. Little Baby Spencer was the sweetest little tot that has ever been before an Atlanta audience. From the time she was first introduced in a valise.

From the time she was first introduced in a valise, until she marched out in the grand drum chorus, everybody was in love with her captivating little manners.

The play has many striking situations, the scen-ery is first-class, the cast splendid, and it is bound to meet with the continued success that it de-serves. Nobody should miss seeing it. Matinee this afternoon; last performance tonight. Monte Cristo.

Next Friday, James O'Neill will appear in Alex-ander Dumas's famous novel dramatization, "Monte Cristo."

"Monte Cristo."
As Edmond Dantes, who afterwards appears as the Count of Monte Cristo, Mr. O'Neill is one of the most polished and finished actors on the American stage. His portrayal of the character is well nigh perfect, and so true to nature that the strange but powerful story appears as a realization. His magnificent physique, his striking demeanor, in fact his whole conduct through the vicissitudes of the romantic life of a sailor, the prisoner and the count, makes the character one of the grandest on the stage. Indeed, the play which Fetcher made is rendered standard by O'Neill.

O'Neill.

The company in which Mr. O'Neill plays is well and thoroughly equipped for the presentation of the story of the mysterious millionaire. The scenery is fine, and the mounting of the play is in every respect superior to that of a great many plays which come to Atlanta on a more pretentious scale. The realistic effect of the surroundings and the powerful portrayal of Edmond Dantes as himself and as the Count of Monte Cristo make the play what it really is—one of the finest that our theater-goers will witness this season.

The silver was artistically laid in emblematic devices, a crescent at either end, and a five-pointed star in the center. The feast was informal, the ladies being helped by the nobles, picnic tashinon, in groups about the hall. The nobles all looked gay in the uniform of the order, a red fez cap with the scimiter and crescent on the front, full evening dress and the regalia of the order, a golden crescent, surmounted by a shining simiter of the same precious metal, and an enamelled Egyptian face between.

The Mystic Shrine is the highest social order in Masonry. None but the nobility are eiigible to membership in countries where monarchy rules, and none but Knights Templar and Masons of the thirty-second degree, Scottish rite, in this country. It is intended as a social order where the members of the higher orders may bring together, their wives, doughters. may bring together their wives, daughters, kinswomen and friends in social intercourse. kinswomen and friends in social intercourse. So far the Mystic Shrine numbers thirty members, and this, their first banquet of social gathering, was a great success. The membership is increasing daily, and as but one temple is allowed to each state, the Yaarab Temple has all Georgia to draw from, and will soon run up into the hundredf. Last night's banquet was a success beyond question, and an evening of rare enjoyment to all participants.

The losses by the fire of yesterday morning proved to be about as reported in THE CON-STITUTION. Mr. Holbrook had about $500 insurance on the building, and Messrs. Purcel & Kates had about $300 on their stock of $1,000. Mr. Woodruff, whose building ad-joined, had his house fully insured, and the lamage to the roof amounts to a small sum.

There is some suspicion that the building was set on fire by an incendiary, but the fire was under such headway when discovered that there was no chance to discover any confirm-ing evidence of the fact. The loss of their stock falls very heavily on Messrs. Purcell & Kates, who had not long been in business

Ex-Governor Bullock, of Georgia, Calmly Considers the Case.

Considers the Case.

From the New York Press.

'To the Editor of the Press: In your able editorial of the 12th, "Respect for Lawful Methods," reference is kindly made to myself by name, with a quotation from a recent card of mine published here, demanding that the controlling elements in our communities exert themselves to prevent mob violence. Commenting upon my objection to new federal election laws for the south, you say: "He has so far not even expressed any willingness to see a simple act for the use of the Australian ballot reform system in electing members of the house of representatives placed on the statute books," etc. Permit me to say at once that I now "express a willingness" for any statute on that books," etc. Permit me to say at once that I now "express a willingness" for any statute on that line that is to be universal in its application. I believe, further, that it is within the power of congress to provide the manner in which members of a state legislature shall be elected when such members are to be called upon to select a United States senator.

The power of federal authority over this subject has never been questioned by me. I have doubted, and still doubt, the policy of a republican congress adopting, or even proposing special sectional legislation for the purpose of overcoming an alleged suppression of the colored vote. Past experience should satisfy every one that if such an evil exists it cannot be overcome in this way. Such legislation solidies the whites here in indifference to the civil and political rights of the blacks. If the whites believe that the blacks are the special wards of the nation they will feel relieved of the duty resting upon them as citizens in their several communities to enforce and maintain the negro's civil and political rights. Again, previous elections following efforts by congress in this direction have nation they will feel relieved of the duty resting upon them as citizens in their several communities to enforce and maintain the negro's civil and political rights. Again, previous elections following efforts by congress in this direction have shown that the people of the north did not favor this character of legislation, and the republican majority in congress was lost.

Belleving, as I do, that the republican policy on all economic issues is best for the prosperity and upbuilding of this section of our country, my purpose is to do whatever is in my power to retain that party in national control. One effort in that direction is to advise against measures that will accomplish no beneficial result here, and are not approved by the business sentiment of the north. I can say without egotism that my experience on these issues has been considerable. More than twenty years ago, during my executive term, the legislature of this state decided that the negro had no right to hold office, and expelled all its colored members (over thirty in number). Against this I protested to the legislature at the time, and subsequently carried the case before congress by memorial. The result was the adoption of the fifteenth amendment and the restoration of the colored men to their seats. I we have also had here the experience of unlimited federal autority and federal forces at elections.

In the light of this experience, supplemented by observation during the years which have intervened, I most solemnly assure you that the only hope for a complete, perfect and willing acquiescence in and support of the black man's rights as a citizen is to be found by putting the responsibility upon and leaving the duty entirely to the organized communities in which he finds his home and earns his living. The statutes already enacted, both state and federal, are ample. The danger to republican institutions here, as with you, is from opening the ballet box to ignorance. The "problem" is how to get clear results from muddy sources.

Leaders of all parties have approved the Australian ballot reform system, and where tried in this country the experiment has been successful. There can be no good reason urged why congress should not provide an election law to be used in all national elections, uniform in all the states. But do not attempt one system for Georgia and another for Massachusetts. I would go further in solving the "problem," viz.: that congress propose an amendment to the constitution that from and after January 1, 1900, no person shall vote in any territory of the United States, or in any state, who cannot read the constitution of the United States in the English language and has not paid all taxes legally required.

States in the English language and has not paid all taxes legally required.

Commenting upon the cowardly outrage of which colored men have recently been subjected in this state and in South Carolina, you say: "The Press would be more hopeful for the south if all the intelligence and respectability of it agreed with ex-Governor Bullock. But such is not the case. Private advice sfrom Barnwell, S. C., representing the highest possible sources of southern culture and imformation, show a tone of justification of the lynching and shooting. * * The Press will let ex-Governor Bullock, a southerner and an opponent of Federal interference, answer that plea. Thanks. I do not feel called upon to answer that plea. There is no justification for unlawful methods. But I am confident you are mistaken when you assume that the "intelligence and respectability," of the south do not agree with me in favoring the supremacy of the law as against mob violence.

me in favoring the supremacy of the law as against mob violence.

I confidentlylassert that there is not a man of that class in Georgia who will publiely announce that he approves or commends mob law. If any fault lies at our door it is that the "intelligence and respectability" in the various communities do not take concerted action to maintain the majesty of the law. The governor of South Carolina has offered large rewards for the arrest of the inhuman desperadoes who defled the law. The governor of this state has been equally diligent, and both stand ready to support the courts and the officers of the plaw with the militia when necessary.

what more could "federal interference" do?

CAPTAIN SNEED'S ELECTION TO COMMAND THE GATE CITY GUARD.

Creates Quite a Sensation in Military Circles—A New Company Will Probably Be Organized. The change of base in the Gate City Guard Tuesday night was all the talk among mem-bers of the several military companies yesterday. Captain Hall's resignation was not regarded with such surprise as was the election of Cap-tain Sneed to fill the vacancy.

This was the sensation of the hour—even among many not actively interested in any of the military companies. The sudden resigna-tion of the other members of the Guard was sternation, for the Rifles were greatly attached to him, and have the utmost confidence in his ability. Captain Snead is a splendid commander, and great deal of the fine discipline of the Rifles is due to his training. He is cool and selfpossessed on the field, and this makes him a formidable opponent in competitive contests. His ability is conceded and admired by all military men, and his command of the Guard means that that company will make a hard fight in coming contests. This is what worries the Rifles. But there were others among the Rifles who freely expressed the opinion that the Guard had made a great mistake in allowing Captain Hall to retire, asserting that it was only through his excellent skill that the company of that company being able to successfully had accomplished anything at all.

Several predictions for the future of both companies were made—one that Captain Hall would be asked to take command of the Rifles, another that a new company would be organized and turned over to him.

The latter opinion was quite general, and those who held it talked knowingly about such a movement. It was said that already there is a lively movement on foot toward the organization of a new company to be known as the "Grady Cadets," but the name of the commander was not definitely mentioned. There was also much talk about a split in the ranks of the Rifles-that a number of the members of that company had announced their intention of resigning and following their old captain to his new command. This was denied, however, by the Rifles, though the report was that the bolters included several officers who would be promoted a notch in the Guard. A good deal of lung power was expended by enthusiasts in naming the new officers of the Guard. W. A. Camp was quite frequently cially mentioned for first sergeant, but the gos sipers nearly all centered upon Charlie Roberts for second place.

Adjutant-General Kell yesterday issued the order for the election of Captain Hall's suc-

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, January 29.—The reactionary temper which appeared in the stock market yesterday became more pronounced today, and continued liquidations, aided by the fierce attacks upon some of the leading stocks by the bears, gave the market an irregular and excited tone. The dis-tribution of business was much more even than during the past few days, and not all of the list was weak, which accounted for the extreme irregularity of the market. The bears were aided by the circulation of a report that the United by the circulation of a report that the Union Pacific and Northwestern had formally withdrawn from the interstate association, which proved to from the interstate association, which proved to be true, and also by rumors of a large bank failure, which was proved to be without foundation. Sugar refineries proved to be one of the principal desquieting features, and right at the opening it became evident that there was to be wide and im-portant fluctuations in the stock, as it opened at 62, against 64 last evening, and rapidly declined to SML. The report was that suits were to be brought against 64 last evening, and rapidly declined to 59½. The report was that suits were to be brought by one of the organizers of that trust to recover a large sum of money, and which would bring the books of the trusts into court. The stock, however, received good support at the decline and recovered to something above the opening prices, though this improvement could not be held, and it closed something off from that figure. The railroad list failed to show such wide and rapid fluctuations, though show such wide and rapid fluctuations, though some of the specialties were unusually depressed. Coalers were remarkably well held. Richmond coalers were remarkably well neid. Kichmond and West Point was especially strong and more active than for many days, though the only reason for the advance was in all probability the very favorable report of the earnings on the Richmond and Danville. Grangers were generally firm, though Rock Island was sold off 1½ per cent on probable conplications which might arise in the event of the final discretion of the Island discretion. probable conplications which might arise in the event of the final disruption of the Intertsate association. Missouri Pacific was an object of specially heavy spressure, and one of the few stocks showing a material loss as the result of the day's business, it failing to recover, but a slight fraction from the lowest point. A weak feature among the specialties was the Chicago and Illinois stocks, which dropped rapdly without apparent cause except that there is apprehension that the dividend upon the preferred might be passed or reduced owing to losses incurred by strikes in its mines.

The general market was stronger in the after-incurred by strikes in its mines.

The general market was stronger in the afternoon, but made no recovery of moment, and finally closed at rather close figures. There were a few small fractional advances for the day, but a majority of the list showed declines, and Chicago and East Illinois preferred was down 6,affl common 3½, sugar 2½, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Burlington each 1½, and Chicago gas 1 per cent. Sales 310,000 shares of listed and 57,000 unlisted.

Henry Clews & Co.'s Circular. Henry Clews & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, January 29—[Special.] — Today's market was a repetition of that which obtained yesterday. The heavy liquidation which left off at the close was continued at the opening this morning and kept up all day, and among the heavy sellers were some of the strongest houses in the trade, including many old bulls. The close was quiet and barely steady within 1 point of the lowest of prices to the da. and show a net loss of points as compared with yesterday. Among the numerous bear arguments which precipitated the decline, outside of the free liquidation movement, was the unsettled condition of the Liverpool and southern markets, heavy port receipts and the fact that the market seemed full of cotton held by weak operators. Spot cotton was easier here at 1-16c lower with a limited inquiry, while prices declined 1-16c in Liverpool, with the southern markets less active and easier; Mobile 1-16c and Norfolk and Savannah ½c lower. The receipts at the ports were heavy, running about 1-10c and Norlolk and Savannah 1/c lower. The re-ceipts at the ports were heavy, running about 3,000 bales over the estimates, aggregating 29,736 bales, against 17,875 bales last week and 21,403 bales last year. So far this week 108,131 bales, against 98,220 bales last week. The total exports were 4,865 bales.

HENEY CLEWS & CO.

The Sun's Cotton Review. NEW YORK, January 29—The Sun, in its review of the cotton market, says: Futures were active at a decline of several points, closing barely steady. The receipts at ports were liberal. Liverpool was dull and more or less depressed. The spot market here and at the south were dull and in some cases lower, and more than all there was a heavy realiz-ing for foreign and home accounts. The receipts are a surprise to the bulls. Cotton on the spot was dull.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, January 29—There was a light business in wheat today. At times the demand was fair and at others very limited, so that the aggregate trading was less than yesterday. The feel too, was rather easy, but the market was held within narrow limits. Good dealing at inside fig-ures and rather free offerings at the outside prevented the market passing the limit. The opening was 1/8c lower, declined about 1/8c 1/4c more and advanced \(\) cagain.

A moderate business was transacted in corn, the bulk of which consisted in changing near futures to the more deferred deliveries. The feeling was firm, July in particular being wanted, and ruled stronger.

There was a marked increase in trading in oats, and a stronger feeling developed, which resulted in a higher range of prices. Offerings for future delivery were conspicuously light most of the ses-sion, and the demand from several large operators was quite urgent. May received the most attention, and prices advanced %c, and was all maintained until the close

Only a moderate trade was transacted in hog products. Operators were not inclined to do much business on either side of the market, and orders from outside parties were somewhat limited. The general surroundings of trade were rather more favorable for better prices, but there was some disposition manifested by manufacturers to sell for future delivery, consequently the improvement in prices was slight. Prices exhib-ited very little change, in some cases favoring buyers.

These encreachments are on a portion of the read's property where it is absolutely necessary that every foot of land should be retained, because it is the only land on which an extra track can be laid. The constant growth of the city, and the increase of the road's busipess, makes it exceedingly probable that an extra track will be needed very soon.

The governor, therefore, thought it best to take immediate steps to enforce the legal rights of the State road and clear the right-of-

Governor Gordon said yesterday that a great deal of the right-of-way belonging to the road sould be utilized by farmers and others without loss to the state. It must, however, all be used subject to the rights of the state, and those occupying the land must be prepared to leave whenever any portion of it was required

Although all the trespassers were notified, as far as their names could be ascertained, the governor thinks he may be obliged to issue a brief proclamation, in order to prevent any claims being made that they built their homes without being warned off the railroad's prop-

Another Atlanta Enterprise Judge Peeples, of the Lawrenceville Herald was at the Kimball yesterday. In speaking of the prospects of his growing town, he said:

"The locating force on the Georgia, Caro lina and Northern railroad has now reached Lawrenceville and is on the way to Atlanta The road is now running from Monroe, N. C., seventy-five miles toward the Savannah river, and the construction of the line has been contracted for as far as the river. "The road is going to be a magnificent one, the money has all been paid in and the iron and equipments have been purchased for the

"In making the surveys from Jug Tavern to Lawrenceville the distance was found to be only sixteen and a half miles, three and a half miles, three and a half miles shorter than the wagon road. It is thought that the distance from Lawrenceville to Atlanta will prove to be not more than ninety-seven miles. "The talk is now of beginning the work in Atlanta and building toward Lawrenceville, instead of building from the other direction, as was at first contemplated. The road will be of great benefit to Atlanta, and will develop the counties all along the line. We are anxious to see the trains running between Lawrenceville and Atlanta, and as there will be a meeting of the directors in a few weeks, when steps will probably be taken to go on with the work of construction. I do not think our wish will remain long ungratified."

After Much Argument, the Shady-Dale Case
Is Settled and a Depot Is Granted.

After a careful consideration of the evidence in the Shady-Dale case, the railroad commission came to a decision yesterday morning, and handed in the following opinion:

In the matter of the application of the citizens of Shady Dale and vicinity for the location of a

In the matter of the application of the cluzens of Shady Dale and vicinity for the location of a depot of the Covington and Macon at Shady Dale: The commissioners, after hearing and considering the testimony of this case, find that there is already a depot of the railroad company located at Machen, a distance of three-quarters of a mile, or a mile, from Shady Dale; they find that it would be a matter of convenience to the citizens of Shady Dale and the people living in a large section of the country adjacent thereto, if there was a depot at Shady Dale; they further find that the president of the railroad company, under the peculiar facts and circumstances, is willing to make an exception in this case to the general rule, (which is not to locate depots in such proximity to each other) and establish a depot at Shady Dale, provided the citizens at that place and persons interested will erect a depot building and maintain the expense of an office agency there, and bear the expense of constructing a side track, except furnishing the necessary rails which the road will furnish; we further find that the persons interested in the establishment of the depot at Shady Dale have heretofore agreed to this proposition berested in the establishment of the depot at Shady Dale have heretofore agreed to this proposition and have gone forward and erected a suitable building for the depot. We, therefore, decide that the said Covington and Macon Railroad company locate and establish a depot at Shady Dale, upon the citizens of that place complying with the agreement herein before set out, made with the president of the railroad company. president of the railroad company.

"I have used Aver's Heir Vicor.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natu-ral color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y. "My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

BILL CRUTCHFIELD.

CAPTAIN FULLER TELLS OF THE CRUTCHFIELD-DAVIS EPISODE.

There Was Nothing to the Discredit of Mr. Davis in It and Nothing to the Credit of Mr. Crutchfield.

The Davis-Crutchfield episode is brought to notice by the death at Chattanooga of Mr. Crutchfield. A Chattanooga special announcing the death gives the following version of the story. It one incident in the life of Mr. Crutchfield deserves record. During and before the war he was proprietor of the Crutchfield house. When Jefferson Davis resigned his seat in the United States senate, in 1861, and proceeded toward the south, he stopped at the Crutchfield house, and during the evening at a banquet made a strong secession speech. Mr. Crutchfield a rose and replied to the speech, denouncing Mr. Davis as a traitor to the country, and said that Mr. Davis deserved nothing less than death, and that Davis deserved nothing less than death, and that he meant to administer it. The excitement was intense, and but for the interference of friends of both parties, either Jefferson Davis or William Crutchfield might have died at the banquet table. Mr. Crutchfield was locked up in a room until Mr. Davis could be induced to proceed on his southern journey, and the trouble was thus ended.

There is another side to that story.

Captain W. A. Fuller, of this city, was preent at Chattanooga at the time referred to, and yesterday had a word to say about the episode.

"I was present at the Crutchfield house in Chattanooga in 1861, when Mr. Davis made the speech alluded to," said Captain W. A. Fuller yesterday. "The article is outrage-ously wrong in every particular where it refers to the difficulty between Mr. Davis and the late Bill Crutchfield. My recollection is quite distinct, and I am confident there was not the slightest danger of a fight between Mr. Davis and Crutchfield at any time during the for-

"Just how did the trouble occur?" "It happened in this way: There had been a great flood. The bridges between Dalton and Chicamauga on the Western and Atlantic railroad were washed away. I was cut off on the Chattanooga end. The Nashville and Chattanooga road was washed out in many places between Chattanooga and Stevenson, hence, passengers from the east, going west, were forced to lie over in Chattanooga several

It was about the later part of January, or 1st of February, 1861, as Mr. Davis and many others, who had left the United States house and senate, were on their way to their respective homes to answer the demands of their constituents. We had learned that Mr. Davis, Jacob Thompson, Judah P. Benjiman, Mr. Slidell and other distinguished gentleman were on the westbound train, and the citizens of Chattanooga, headed by Mr. Thomas Crutchfield, a brother of William Crutchfield so eulogized, in large numbers telegraphed to Mr. Davis, intercepting his train at Greenville, Tenn., requesting him to make a speech in Chattanooga, as he could not for some days proceed on his journey for the reason I have given. "Mr. Davis answered from Athens, Tenn. that he would address such of the people as should meet him at the hotel, and a large audience awaited his arrival and listened to his most admirable and conservative address. There was no banquet, nor was Mr. Wm. Crutchfield the proprietor of the hotel.

"While Mr. Davis was speaking, Bill Crutchfield climbed upon the hotel counter, and propounded some offensive questions to the speaker. Mr. Davis paused for a moment and ooked Mr. Crutchfield square in the face, and with his left hand signalled him to be quiet, as though for a moment, he then turned to the audience and asked: 'Is there a gentlemen in this audience who indorses that man?' pointing to Crutchfield, and emphasizing the words gen-tleman and man. The whole audience without a single exception answered with such a storm of nos, that Mr. Crutchfield slipped down from the counter and crawled out the back way, and was heard of no more.

"Mr. Thomas Crutchfield, the proprietor of the hotel, was very much mortified at the conduct of his brother. Bill Crutchfield, though a man of some means, had a way of dressing extremely shabby, and no doubt Mr. Davis underestimated him.

I am positive that in all that occurred, there was nothing to the credit of Mr. Crutchfield, nor was there anything to the discredit of our beloved Davis.

Marion Harland on Soup-Making.

Marion Harland on Soup-Making.

In the course of my explorations, I was directed by a friend who had tested their products, to the building occupied by the Franco-American Food company, New York.

What I saw and learned of real soup-making-honest, clean and appetizing—I propose, still in the interest of American housewives, to relate as frankly as I would expose the iniquities of conventional "canning," did diaphragm and taste allow me to undertake the task.

Beginning with the raw material, I, an unexpected visitor, found in the larder huge shins of obeef; chickens, dressed and whole, fair, plump and free from the suspicion of taint; calves heads, white and firm; mutton and veal in prime order; barrels of healthy vegetables; parsley, celery and other soup herbis; all the appliances needful for the manufacture of divers kinds of soup in a private family, but on a gigantic scale.

This is the opinion of Marion Harland on a small scale, embodied in a book on soup-making, which we will present free to anyone who will ask for one at our store.

We have all kinds, such as Green Turtle, Terrapin, Mock Turtle, Ox Tail, Melligatawney, Consonme, Julienne Chicken, Vegetable, Puntanier, Beef-Mutton Broth, Tomato, Pea and French Boullion, all of which are delightful, and should be tried to be appreciated.

Do you want some first-class, dark Buckwheat and pure Maple Syrup for breakfast? If so, we can supply you.

Then if you have a bad cold and want some pure Honey, which is good for all pulmonic affections, we have that also. If you want the best Jersey Bütter in Atlanta, we have it. Remember this, because we know good butter is hard to find. We have just received fresh invoices of Pineapple Cheese, Edam and Neufehatel. Also small Dove Ham, from six to ten pounds. B. Bacon in small pieces, two to four pound. Try Split Pea Soup, or Lentils, they are nice. Our fancy New York Oneida Community Cheese has arrived. Strawberries, fresh every day, during this week.
